Agent Answers Farm Questions

By H. E. Reynolds

Extension Agent-Agriculture Q. We have worked on efficient production for a long time, but farmers' income has declined in relation to others. Why don't we put more emphasis on marketing?

A. A great deal more emphasis is formerly being placed on all phases of marketing and utilization of agricultural products by Congress (recent bargaining legislation, food commission), by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, farmers' marketers and consumers. Progress is being made, but much remains to be done in adjusting production and marketing systems to the rapid emergence of new technology.

Rights and Limits of Dissent

By Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va.

The highly publicized "Poor People's March on Washington" is in progress.

A cluster of plywood huts and tents now covers parkland on the banks of the Potomac intended to provide a setting for the majestic Lincoln Memorial building and the Washington Monument.

Apparently anxious to preserve the traditional right of petition -- and dissent -- top administration leaders granted the permit for use of this federal land in the heart of the capital city.

The permit signed May 10th required an immediate bond to assure restoration of the parklands and grounds, but this was not posted for nearly two weeks, long after the land had been occupied.

The permit expires June 16, yet leaders of the pressure campaign publicly state they plan to stay in Washington for a year or more.

What are the demands by these occupants of their self-styled "Resurrection City, U.S.A.?"

Frankly, I don't know except for a barrage of proposals for additional massive multi-billion dollar federal outlays.

Americans are a compassionate people. I support efforts to stamp out poverty and hunger but, like education, I believe the most effective action must be at local, community and state levels.

I question that we ever can eliminate poverty by huge and costly new federal welfare programs.

All of this comes at a time when the President has been pressing for higher taxes while fencing with Congressional requirements for tandem multi-billion dollar budget cuts.

Leaders of the "march" keep repeating that their demonstrations will be non-violent -- that violence will result only as a last resort.

To me, this means they will remain non-violent only if they get what they want.

As a senator, I will listen to the petitions or proposals of any group utilizing the time-tested methods of our democracy.

But I will not be intimidated. I will not submit to threats to turn Washington inside out and upside down with massive civil disobedience demonstrations unless the Congress yields.

The Congress acts for all 200 million citizens -- the taxpayers as well as those who seek special benefits from federal spending.

Those who agitate for massive disobedience ignore the democratic principles of civil rights for both the majority and minority, and Constitutional guarantees to the individual for safety of person and property.

They must learn that the right to dissent is not a license for descent to lawlessness.

Law-abiding and responsible citizens and their elected representatives must insist on an end to the recent spasms of violence and disorder.

They must stand squarely for vigorous enforcement of our laws and firm prosecution of those who would create anarchy.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY

No Headlines

The young frequently complain that too often all young people are penalized for the misdeeds of a few.

"There are more good young people than bad," they argue, and rightly so.

More college students wear their hair cut and combed than shaggy and unkempt. The majority of young people are aware of the need for a higher education and they direct their energies more into the pursuit of physics than the pursuit of pot. Out of millions of young people in America, only a few give flowers on a Haight-Ashbury street corner. A great many of remaining college-age youth give time and enthusiasm to projects that make their communities better places in which to live.

Among those young people -- the ones the young complain go unnoticed by the adult world -- are groups of young men from fraternities at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville who have donated man hours, muscle and high spirits this spring to further community projects in this college town.

They've dug ditches and moved buildings at Camp Faith, painted a church, cooked hot dogs for children from low-income families and clowned to make the youngsters laugh at the Children's Rehabilitation Center.

Nearly 200 men from 25 fraternities recently turned out for the University Inter-Fraternity Council Carnival at the rehabilitation center where they entertained the children with magic and fortune telling booths and handed out goldfish, toys and candy as prizes for turtle races. There were pie-throwing contests with 20-year-olds shaking banana cream out of their ears.

However, for Virginia fraternity men participating in a community service project doesn't necessarily mean a day in the sunshine with a crowd of excited children. For 50 men from Phi Delta Theta it was a cold, dismal and wet Saturday they spent at Camp Faith digging ditches and post holes, and untangling brush.

Another day, 20 men from Delta Sigma Chi built up a beach where in a few days youngsters, who would not otherwise have summer recreation facilities, will swim.

"The effort expended by these men was simply magnificent," said John Lowe, president of Camp Faith.

The University students have given more than 300 man hours to Camp Faith, a new free summer day camp located on 200 acres north of Charlottesville that is operated through donations and volunteer help.

Fraternity men also have found the time and interest to paint Trinity Episcopal Church and participate in the church's big brother program; to sell balloons to benefit the American Cancer Society Fund; to solicit door-to-door for the Heart Fund and Good Neighbor campaign; to assist as volunteers in the Westminster Tutorial Study Program, and at Sigma Chi house, to treat 20 youngsters to an outdoor barbecue and games.

Fraternities are increasingly aware of the need to contribute to the community in which they live," said Edward W. Hayes, president of the University's Inter-Fraternity Council. "More and more fraternity men are taking the lead in contributing to the University and to Charlottesville in every way."

So are millions of other young people in high schools and colleges across the country.

A soldier in Vietnam, in my opinion, thinks and talks about his home town more than any other subject. Of course, there are always the arguments between friends as to who comes from the best state or town. Well, I know without a doubt that South Boston, Virginia has them all beat.

In my unit, we have only 70 men and we are located on top of a mountain outside Vung Tau about 50 miles south of Saigon. We are the only Navy personnel in this area and all our supplies have to be shipped in through the Army. Very seldom do we get cigarettes of our choice or soda, candy, chewing gum, etc. For a time, we were three weeks before the Army brought us portable water. Australia helps us with soda but it doesn't compare with an American Coke or Pepsi. My mother mentioned this to Mr. J. E. Tuck of American Tobacco Company in a casual conversation and, before I knew it, South Boston merchants were supplying us with cigarettes. We received cigarette shipments from Wilborn's Hardware, One-Hour Martiniz ing, Smith Automotive, Halifax Cotton Mills, Spencer Lumber Company, Citizens Bank and Faulkner and Lawson Drug Company and personal packages from Mr. J. E. Tuck and Mr. Charles Lea, and Miss Jennie P. Lawson of Faulkner and Lawson Drug Company sent me an Easter package.

The attention given to me when I was wounded and by my friends calling my home shows there are no nicer people I'd rather fight for than my friends in South Boston.

I thank you all from the bottom of my heart and my whole unit feels the same way.

Sincerely,
Bob Pulliam SMSG
U.S. Navy Inshore Undersea Warfare Group I, Unit I

(Editor's note: Bob Pulliam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Montine Pulliam on Chamberlain Street, was injured in the line of duty a month ago. He was confined to an area Red Cross hospital with infection to wounds on the arms and hands. In a recent letter to his parents, he reported that he was back in combat.)

HERE AND THERE

Plentiful rain has blessed this community with a lushness we have not seen in years. Never have the trees, shrubs and grass been greener or healthier. Never have the flowers been more beautiful. Were I a poet I could wax lyrical. Being no poet, I can only take note and be pleased with what my eyes behold and enjoy.

I wish I could persuade my editor to look again at the bond referendum that Virginians will vote on in November before he urges Halifax Countians to vote nay. I concede we live in an age when we are taxed to death, interfered with by governments on every level

"Wilco" etc. It is at least something new to keep my mind occupied for a while. I am at the moment a mile or two from a huge air base on the edge of Saigon on a Sunday morning, protecting the men inside from the insidious Communists. And he makes me humble because all I have to worry about on a Sunday morning is preparing a Sunday School lesson that isn't too dull.

And from South Boston's Paul Steube another letter "Here we are in the delta killing the hated Cong. I'm flying off an L.S.T. (clean, air-conditioned, good ship - board chow and plenty of action)." Paul is in the Naval Air Command, came home from Guam recently for training in a souped up helicopter with every conceivable modern weapon, even rockets, on it. His school was called SERE, an abbreviation for Survival, Evasion, Resistance, Escape . . . which should give you some idea of how dangerous his job is. He hedge-hops with that machine . . . I wish he didn't! And I'm thankful his quarters and chow are good.

until we are tempted to yell "Uncle" at any more of government. But, the truth as I see it, is that Virginia is woefully behind in offering the best in up-to-date care to citizens who become patients in her mental institutions. Nearly $14,000,000 of the bond money, if it passes, would go toward building more facilities at mental institutions. Figures often do not tell the whole story, I know, but the fact is that while the number of patients confined to mental institutions has fallen 15% nationally, the rate of increase in Virginia is nearly 3%. This is because Virginia institutions have lacked the staff and the facilities to discharge patients rapidly. There is, in all the state-owned institutions only a 50 bed ward in one hospital, Eastern State, to care for emotionally disturbed children. The rest of the money expected from the bond referendum, should it pass, will go toward building more dormitories and classrooms on campuses of state colleges. This seems important to me. And I thank my editor for his indulgence in printing a different point of view.

And there was the two-year old who swallowed the live turtle and laughed because it tickled. Seems it was, for a while at least, still kicking. Last report was that the kid may have to have surgery to remove the creature. Children will swallow anything! Surely this was the most freakish I've heard of. One of the miracles we seldom note is the fact that they live through childhood at all.

From Vietnam my young friend writes, "I have a new job. I am an R.T.O., which means radio telephone operator. I carry the radio and drag around after our platoon leader relaying messages such as 'Spread those damn people out,' and I use interesting words such as 'Roger and

City Democrats Endorse Daniel For Congress

The South Boston Democratic Committee has passed a resolution endorsing the candidacy of W. C. (Dan) Daniel for the House of Representatives from the Fifth District.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

Whereas, our capable and distinguished Member of Congress, Hon. Wm. M. Tuck, is not a candidate for re-election and will retire at the close of his present term of office, and

Whereas, Hon. W. C. (Dan) Daniel is the Democratic nominee for election as Governor Tuck's successor in the U.S. House of Representatives, and

Whereas, this committee believes Mr. Daniel possesses outstanding qualifications for the position, by reason of his public service as a State legislator and his varied experience in agriculture, business and civic affairs,

Now therefore be it resolved, that the Democratic Committee of the City of South Boston, Virginia, hereby endorses the candidacy of Mr. Daniel and commands him to the voters of our City as a gentleman of fine character and ability, and as one eminently qualified to represent the Fifth District in the Congress of the United States, and

Be it finally resolved, that this Committee appeals to all voters in the City of South Boston to support Mr. Daniel in the General Election on Tuesday, November 5, 1968.

Farm Price Outlook

Strengthening In Egg Prices Is Indicated

This is the way prospects for Virginia farm prices looked to the Virginia Department of Agriculture on Friday. The Department offers it to farmers with the warning that no one can predict prices and be right all the time.)

Some seasonal strengthening is anticipated in egg prices during the next few weeks.

Improvement is expected due to this year's smaller replacement flock. Pullets five months of age and under are down 19 per cent from last year. The number of pullets in Virginia is down 28 per cent from 1967.

Farm prices last Friday in Virginia were: Grade A large 27 - 28 - 1/2 cents, mediums 19 - 21 cents, and smalls 14 - 18 cents. Large white eggs in New York were 29 - 1/2 - 31 cents, mediums 22 - 23 cents, and smalls 19 - 20 - 1/2 cents.

BROILERS

No significant change is anticipated in the broiler market during the next several weeks, and prices should remain steady to firm.

The broiler supply for June should be down about 1 per cent, and is expected to be up about 1 per cent in July.

Prizes last Friday were 15 cents in Virginia, and prices Wednesday on the DelMarVa exchange ranged mostly from 16 cents. Base valuations in the south-eastern states ranged from 13 - 1/2 - 14 - 1/2 cents, (mostly 13 - 1/2).

Red Cross Appeals For Blood Donors

A plea to residents of this area planning their vacations to include a blood donation in their preparations was issued today by the American Red Cross.

Pointing out that, "accidents and illness never take a holiday," Dr. Evan C. Stone, Jr., area medical director of the Red Cross Blood Program, Eastern Area, said that blood donations invariably dwindle to their lowest point in the summertime, while the need for blood, mainly because of summer highway accidents, frequently increases.

Basing his estimate on the July-August accident rates of other years, Dr. Stone in his Alexandria headquarters said that motor vehicle fatalities across the United States in the two-month period are expected to be around 9,000 "with disabling injuries, many of them requiring immediate blood transfusions, correspondingly high."

"The solution is for all healthy Americans, age 18 through 60, to donate blood to the Red Cross or their community blood bank before leaving for their vacations," Dr. Stone said. "It will be for their own protection as well as for others."

Dr. Stone stressed, however, that it is essential to the Red Cross to maintain a constant, uniform blood supply throughout the year. Donors are encouraged to make their donations on a

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Readers Are Asking . . .

Why is there an additional charge for the use of a hospital operating room?

It is almost impossible for patients to really understand the complexities of running a hospital. Not only is such an institution devoted to the total care of the health of the patient, but there is in addition a hotel-like structure to be administered.

These two aspects of a hospital would seem to be a monumental task. In addition, there is the problem of personnel who are trained in specialized fields of nursing care.

The astronomical costs of running a completely safe operating room is unbelievable even to those of us who work in them every day. Equipment, sterilization processes, and operating material are exceedingly costly. Cost corners cannot be cut if safety is to be kept at a constant peak.

Anesthesia material must be of the finest and used with the very latest techniques and instruments. This is expensive. It would never come to the attention of the patient that a small can of a specialized anesthetic, probably no more than a pint, costs about $40. Suture material, gauze bandages, seem almost incidental, but add tremendously to the cost of running an operating room.

A relatively simple operation for the removal of an appendix which takes about three-quarters of an hour may have six or eight people in constant attendance about the surgeon. The high cost of the charge for an operating room hardly makes a dent in the total expense of any well run hospital. Illness is a very special luxury.

Origin Of Flag Day Explained

Old Glory, The Star-Spangled Banner, The Stars and Stripes -- your country's flag.

Fly it every day, if you wish, but be sure to fly it Friday, June 14. That's Flag Day.

It was on June 14, 1777, that the Continental Congress passed this resolution:

Resolved, that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

No one knows who designed this flag, or who made the first one, William J. Canby said in 1870 that his grandmother, Betsy Ross, made the first one, but historians doubt it.

The Continental Congress left no record to show why it chose red, white and blue for the flag, but in 1782 the Congress of the Confederation chose these same colors for the newly designed Great Seal of the United States.

The resolution on the seal said red is for hardness and courage, white is for purity and innocence, and blue is for vigilance, perseverance, and justice.

And the flag itself? World Book Encyclopedia says:

"The Stars and Stripes stands for the land, the people, the government, and the ideals of the United States, no matter when or where it is displayed."

Fly it proudly.

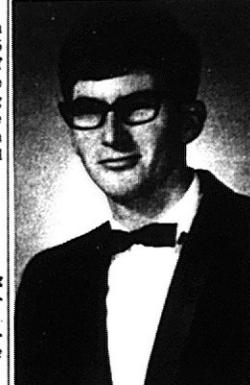

Many of the world's biggest cities are almost unknown to Americans. A list of cities with more than a million people in the National Geographic Atlas of the World includes Lushun-Luta in China, Ahmadabad in India, Novosibirsk in the Soviet Union, and Nagoya in Japan.

Annuals Need Care During Summertime

By Louise B. Tunc
Extension Agent
Home Economics

Annuals and perennials should not be neglected as they often are. This is especially true if annuals are to remain attractive until frost, or for a second bloom of flowers on some perennials.

In order to maintain annual and perennial flowers, this includes summer flowering bulbs, it is important to keep these suggestions in mind.

Remove all faded flowers to prevent seed production. If the plant is allowed to go to seed, its period of flower production will be shortened.

Herbaceous plants, which include all annuals and perennials, require a good deal of moisture and must be watered thoroughly. During dry weather, moisten the soil to a depth of 4 to 5". After watering, remove a spade of soil to determine the depth the water has penetrated. Mulching helps conserve moisture.

Annual and perennials may be rejuvenated by cutting the plants back drastically. This encourages new growth which will flower and produce a new display of color. Petunias should be pruned back since they become quite tall. These can be pruned as late as August and still produce a good display of color.

Snapdragons, zinnias, marigolds, and many other annuals should be cut and used in arrangements. Mildew and leafspot diseases are quite troublesome in late summer, especially on zinnias. Covering the plants with a fungicide will help prevent this from becoming a major problem. It should be applied at the first signs of mildew.

Tall-growing annuals and perennials should be staked to prevent damage from heavy winds or rain.

Halifax 'Jaycee Of Quarter'

James A. (Tony) Michaels has been named Halifax "Jaycee of the Quarter" for the quarter ending May 31.

Michaels was cited for his outstanding work throughout the year as external vice-president of the Halifax Jaycees and for winning the recent regional speak-up contest in Danville.

A native of South Boston, he now resides with his wife, Susan, on Snead Lane in Halifax. The Michaels have one daughter, Tracy, 14 months.

Michaels is employed at Burlington Industries, where he is training director.

Over the past 10 years, per capita use of fresh potatoes has declined 25%, while use of processed potatoes . . . frozen, dehydrated and canned . . . has more than tripled.

Potatoes are a prime example of the home-to-processor preparation center. Time was when a potato was a potato . . . plain, undramatic, unromantic, unadorned (and probably sometimes unashed) . . . that's how you bought them and that's the stage at which you started to prepare them.

In nutritive value, dishes made from processed potatoes and those from fresh potatoes were basically similar. There was some difference noted in the amount of fat taken up by french fries. Those prepared from fresh potatoes contained about 9% fat when served; frozen french fries reheated in fat contained 19% to 28% fat; frozen fries reheated in the oven contained 8 to 16% fat, with crinkle-cut and regular-cut at the low end of the range and shoestring-cut at the high end.

Eggs Remain Most Popular Human Food

By H. S. Reynolds

Extension Agent-Agriculture. That old breakfast standby, eggs, are among the most widely used animal products for human foods.

Eggs retain their popularity because of their high nutritive value and low cost. Every vitamin needed by man is present in the egg, except Vitamin C.

And, egg proteins are of unusually high biological value and are easily digested, especially when soft cooked. All of the essential amino acids, often called the building blocks of protein, are supplied in the protein of an egg, and one supplies about one-eleventh of the daily protein requirements.

Then too, all the mineral elements necessary for formation of blood, bone and soft tissues are present in the egg. The Vitamin A, D and riboflavin content of eggs are in large quantities in eggs than in most other foods.

A dozen large size eggs weighs about 1 1/2 pounds. At 50 cents a dozen, this size egg costs about 32 cents a pound. Often the question is asked as to how much more a homemaker can pay for extra large eggs as compared to large eggs, or how much more a person can pay for large eggs opposed to medium eggs, as assuming the same grade. The rule of thumb is that when there is less than 5 to 7 cents difference in the cost per dozen of two sizes, the larger of the two will give you more eggs, based on the cost per pound, than the smaller size.

New, Better Varieties Of Soybeans Available

Chances are that the soybean variety Ogden will be discounted in price beginning with the 1969 harvest season.

Reasons given for the proposed discount include: low oil content, low protein content, the fact that the green colored seed imparts an off-flavor to the oil and the hull is difficult to remove, leading to an increased fiber content in the meal.

Newer and better varieties are now available, so it is hoped Ogden can be phased out. It should be replaced with Dare, York, Hood or Lee varieties.

Since the proposed discount for Ogden won't come until the 1969 harvest season, there is no change in recommendations for planting this year. A questionnaire sent to certified soybean seed producers last year showed the average yield of Ogden considerably below the average for other popular soybean varieties grown in Virginia.

The most promising soybean varieties we now have are the two newly released varieties Dare and York. There is a fairly large supply of registered and certified seed of Dare available for planting this spring. There should be an ample supply for 1969 plantings. However, there is no supply of registered or certified seed of York soybeans for this year's planting. Only a limited supply of foundation seed was available this year. There should be a moderate supply of registered York soybeans available for 1969 planting and an ample supply of certified seed for 1970 planting.

Last year 383,000 acres of soybeans were harvested in Virginia. This was an increase of 54.4 per cent over acreage harvested just 10 years previously. Soybean production is confined largely to the Coastal Plain area. Although most of the Piedmont area is well suited to soybean production, farmers have been slow in adding soybeans to their crop production program. This is probably because this area is not so well suited to double-cropping as is the Coastal Plains area. A large percentage of soybeans produced in the Coastal Plain area is planted after small grain, thus getting two cash crops from the land in the same year.

We believe the recently organized Virginia Soybean Association will stimulate even more interest and that the trend in soybeans in this state will continue upward.

Christian Scientists Call For 'Spiritual Builders'

BOSTON, MASS. — Today's world of destructive upheaval and tremendous change calls men to be spiritual builders.

This appeal from The Christian Science Board of Directors was heard June 3 by over seven thousand Christian Scientists, gathered here from around the world for the Annual Meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

The message from the Board of Directors, read by Arthur P. Wuth, its new Chairman, stressed individual effort as the first step in any attempt to help solve the world's ills.

"Poverty, ignorance, war, racial conflict, immorality, civil disorder, mental and physical enslavement exemplify standards torn down, spiritual ideals descended, the best of civilization fallen into disuse," Wuth said.

Nehemiah's example as a spiritual builder was cited as still vital and useful to Christians today. In rebuilding the wall of Jerusalem, Wuth explained, Nehemiah was making practical his own understanding of God and His kingdom.

"Is not the need then for individuals dedicated to their work, committed and consecrated to the task of spiritual building?" he asked.

Wuth then quoted the disciple Peter: "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ (I Peter 2:5.)

"Lively stones imply more than building blocks," he continued. "Liveliness denotes action, action resulting from spiritual unfoldment, action that is inspired, rightly motivated, God-supported, God-supported, God-supported."

Singling out war and racial conflict as two of the major problems which the Church must confront, Wuth said:

"The Church must fulfill the requirements of peace by teaching the practicality of the great commandments — love for God and love for one's neighbor. It must teach the alness of God, good, the impersonality of evil, and the ability of the individual, whatever his race or color, to demonstrate this."

"Harmony, order, and peace know no color line. They belong to the spiritual heritage of each individual; and it is the responsibility of Church to assert, demonstrate and maintain this standard."

The healing and uplifting work of Jesus, Wuth said, attested the practicality of spiritual building by means of prayer and inspiration.

Mary Baker Eddy, who discovered and founded Christian Science, taught the need for each individual to contribute to the progress and regeneration of society through spiritual building, he said.

Gordon V. Comer, newly-elected President for the coming year, said that whatever the turmoil of the present times, spiritual values and all the blessings they bring to humanity will survive.

The Christian Scientists visiting Boston this year noticed many changes resulting from the large building project now underway. Considerable demolition and foundation work has already been completed. Construction is expected to begin this month on a new Administration Building, a new Sunday School building and a large multi-purpose building.

At present the activities at the headquarters of the denomination are carried out in eight different buildings, so that centralization of facilities and personnel is long overdue. The new Church Center is expected to be under construction for about two and one half years.

Gardeners sometimes locate colonies of squash bugs by their noxious odor, National Geographic says. The pests take their name from squash, pumpkins, and other gourds they eat.

The first national political convention in the United States was held in 1831 by the short-lived Anti-Mason Party.
